Introduction

I believe that leadership is the most important element of any organization. It is my conviction that leaders have the greatest responsibility here on the earth. Leaders have the ability to shape and form the destinies of those that submit to their influence. They can destroy lives or they can transform lives.

The greatest satisfaction any leader can get is to hear the words,

“I Love The Way You Lead”

When constituents and followers understand that leaders are transforming and empowering their lives, they speak well about the process. However, when leaders are not effective, it causes the morale of their organization to diminish. It raises the likelihood of revenue loss and high employee turnover. It prompts those under the poor leadership regime to say, “I hate the way they lead.”

I wrote this e-book so that leaders would have a toolkit that they can reference to become the leaders that make others say, “I love the way you lead.”

Sincerely,

KYRON C. REGIS

JOHN MAXWELL

“LEADERS ARE ALWAYS SEEING A LITTLE FARTHER, A LITTLE MORE, THAN THOSE AROUND THEM.”

Have you ever been a part of an organization or group that failed to make considerable advancements? Within that experience, I can wager that if you ask the leader or sub-leaders, you will find that they all have conflicting visions. They do not all possess a clear picture of the future. In some cases, they do not possess any picture of the future at all - this is a horrible situation.

Have you ever seen someone who has been stuck in the same phase of life for years? I can possibly predict with uncanny precision that this person has no vision as well. Now you might say, “I am sure that this person has dreams.” In that instance, what you say might be true. However, that is exactly the point - the person only dreams but has no vision.

Those with vision dream, but those who dream don't necessarily have vision.

What is the difference between dreams and visions?

The difference between dreams and visions is movement. Those who have vision move toward the vision with goals and daily action plans, whereas these who just dream merely fantasize without any plan to move forward.

Some facts about vision:

- True vision always inspires action.
- Vision is way bigger than one individual.
- You have to become a certain person to accomplish the vision. As Les Brown says, "In order to do something that you have never done, you have to become someone that you have never been."

The Good Book says, "Without a vision the people perish." Oh how true some of us know that to be.

What are the benefits of vision?

A. VISION GIVES YOU A STARTING POINT.

One of the best and most fruitful decisions you will ever make is to begin. I remember speaking to a very successful entrepreneur who had become a millionaire. Our conversation went as follows:

"Roger, when the ball starts to roll I will do these things and organize that." He responded to me, "Kyron, the ball isn't going to start rolling. You have to roll the ball!" He continued saying, "My mother always told me if I don't get up and get, I will not have!!"

This successful leader emphasized to me the importance of starting. I had a dream, but I wasn't driven by a vision. A clear vision begets a mission or purpose that will propel you into a process towards becoming what you see. You will never begin anything worthwhile if you don't have a picture of the future that you intend to live out. However, you will never live out that picture or vision if you do not have a goals and daily activities to bring it into reality.

B. YOU BECOME WHAT YOU SEE.

Ralph Waldo Emerson - "You become what you think about, most of the time".

Many leaders around the world have witnessed and experienced the power of visioning. Those with tremendous success will tell you that it all started with a vision. Those who have not received much success will tell you that they didn't have one (a vision). When you begin to commit to daily actions, to achieve a goal, that will bring the vision to pass, the person you become in the process is one of the greatest sources of satisfaction. Jim Rohn always reinforced that the fact of you getting your first million isn't nearly as important as the person you had to become to retain such an acquisition.
